Council Fixes Grades Definitely on Various Streets Preparatory to Paving

MEADOW AVENUE WORK FIRST

Petition for Improvement of Street From First to Fourth Likely to Be Presented at Next Meeting of Borough Fathers.

Grade ordinances for four streets received consideration at a meeting of the borough council Tuesday evening, when two of them were finally passed and two passed on first reading. Ordinances setting the grade of Third street from Lincoln avenue to Woodland avenue, and setting the grade of Fourth street from Lincoln avenue to Lookout avenue passed final reading.

Two new grade ordinances were introduced, one establishing the grade of Seventh street from Lincoln avenue to Meadow avenue. It was ordered printed and posted. An ordinance establishing the grade of Meadow avenue from First to Tenth street received attention on first reading and was ordered printed and posted. It is likely that the first street that will receive attention in the year's grading and paving campaign will be Meadow avenue, a petition having already been prepared and largely signed for improvement of this street from First street to Fourth street. It will be presented, most likely at the next meeting of council, when also it is expected an ordinance for the grading and paving of the street will be taken up.

President D. R. Duvall was in the chair at the meeting of council and the members present were Councilman W. R. Gaut, Samuel A. Michener, C. W. Weltner and J. K. Mitchell.

John H. Frye was present to ask council to consider the matter of paving Fifth street from the end of the paving above Meadow avenue to the borough line. The matter will be taken up later by council.

A resolution was passed authorizing the repairing of a retaining wall along Lincoln avenue near Eighth street.

Reports were made of the inventory of the borough property. Street Commissioner Jacob Hornell in his "stock taking" reported equipment valued at $2,512. Borough Engineer Harvey P. Brown reported that equipment owned by his department possessed a value of $569.75, and Borough Clerk Ira L. Nickerson reported that the borough office fixtures and equipment represented a value of $500.

LENTEN SEASON BEGINS; SOCIAL GAYETIES CURBED

Churches to Observe Forty Days' Period With Solemn Services—Ash Wednesday Celebrated Today.

Today is Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the Lenten season or the first of 40 days of fast and abstinence before Easter. Social gayeties will be curbed until after Easter Sunday and the penitential period will be spent with special services in the churches. In the Catholic churches they will be more pronounced.

At all masses this morning in Catholic churches the solemn ceremony which gives the day its name took place. Ashes obtained from burned palms on Palm Sunday of last year were blessed and they were placed on the forehead of communicants by the priests with the words: "Remember, man that thou art dust and to dust thou shalt return."

At St. Jerome's church morning mass was observed at 8 o'clock and there will be services this evening.

COMMUNITY CLUBS STUDY PROBLEMS

Meeting Held by Representative Men in Pittsburgh to Arrange Big Campaign

SEVERAL ADDRESSES MADE

Discussing plans for a state-wide organization which will be undertaken after the issuance of a charter which will be applied for in the Allegheny county courts representative members of Community Club of Pennsylvania met in the Hotel Henry Tuesday night. The organization of community clubs for the study of educational, sociological and municipal problems will be sought in all cities and towns in the state. Tuesday night's meeting was the second gathering of the kind held by the clubs, the first of which was organized in Charleroi four years ago. Charles O. Frye was the organizer and now is devoting all his time to Community Club work.

Dr. Charles B. Robertson, president of the council, presided. Brief addresses were delivered by G. W. Flowers of Irwin; Dr. John T. Holdsworth, dean of the school of economics of the University of Pittsburgh; J. Ralph Park, secretary of the Allied Boards of Trade of Allegheny county; Dr. Francis D. Tyson of the University of Pittsburgh and Prof. A. B. Wright, instructor of political science in the University of Pittsburgh. John D. Berryman of Charleroi, was the last speaker.

The charter will be applied for at once and a state-wide organization effected. All members of the council expressed themselves as convinced that a necessity exists for a dispassionate survey and discussion of problems arising from the complex affairs of modern civic life.

Final preparations are being made for the beginning tomorrow night of the big tabernacle gospel meetings in the Fifth street tabernacle, the Minges Evangelistic company of seven to be here on that evening for their six weeks' campaign. Tonight the last prayer meeting of a series will be held at the First Christian church, the Baptist people from the First Baptist church to join in making it a union service. The chorus choir will hold its first meeting tonight at 8:15 o'clock, when singers will gather at the tabernacle. Probably the advance agent of the evangelistic company will be on hand at this time to look after preliminaries in choir instruction. Good seating arrangements have been made at the tabernacle, and careful attention has been given to details. It will seat about 1,600 or 1,700. Members of the First Christian church, who started the evangelistic movement, anticipate much success in the campaign. The two churches now furthering the movement officially are the First Christian and the First Baptist, with others of Charleroi joining the movement unofficially.

SOUTHSIDE TEAM DISBANDS; CHARLEROI WITHOUT GAME

West Penn League Schedule Disarranged by Dropping Out of Pittsburgh Club

Unable to get a hall in Pittsburgh and unable to play entirely as a road team the Southside basketball five of the West Penn league has disbanded, and Charleroi is therefore without a game on the local floor for tonight. The old Southside market house, which the Southside team used was burned recently.

Manager Russell may have two games next week, the one on Wednesday to be the league game and another to be played, likely on Friday, with the Utica, N. Y. team. At any rate the Utica lads will be here for a game, whether on Friday or not.

Manager Russell of Charleroi, will get Troetchel, the Southside star for the rest of the season. The league schedule is now being revised because of the dropping of Southside.

GOOD SOIL FOR VEGETATION HERE

Variety in This County Known as Westmoreland, State Experts Report

STORY IN COLLEGE BULLETIN

Washington county, as well as other southwestern counties in Pennsylvania have to content themselves with Westmoreland soil, according to a bulletin issued by Pennsylvania State College. This soil which is of a grayish brown or yellowish brown surface is supposed to be a good place to grow fruit and especially peaches and apples.

The Westmoreland soil is derived from interbedded sandstones and shales, together with layers of limestones and calcareous shales. This kind of soil, so known and so composed, is found as far north as Indiana, Arkansas and Lawrence counties.

The man who wrote the Westmoreland soil story for the bulletin is authority for the statement that the soil suffers severely from erosion and gulches and he also makes the discovery that it is necessary to plow and plant on contours in order to prevent washing in the tilled fields, also it is necessary, he says to terrace some of the hillsides to make them productive.

Corn, oats, wheat, buckwheat and potatoes, with the first named getting the prize for production, grow very nicely in Westmoreland soil. There are really five varieties of soil included in the classification known as Westmoreland, and all are good for grass producing, which of course makes dairying or stock raising possible on a large scale where mining or coke operations haven't interfered.

Peaches and apples do well in Westmoreland soil, and so do bush fruits and truck and garden crops are successful on the lighter type. The conclusion of the article on the soil subject is: "The Westmoreland soils in the past have been held in very high regard, and there is no reason, if given good tilage and supplied with organ-

Announcement Made That Glass Factory Will Resume on Saturday

WILL EMPLOY OVER 300 MEN

Indefinite Run to be Result of Industrial Efforts at up-River Town—Repairs Made Within Last Six Weeks.

Official announcement was made Tuesday that the glass works in West Brownsville would be opened Saturday and would run at full capacity for an indefinite period. Manager W. S. Phillips of the Brownsville Window Glass company, who made the announcement, stated that all repairing and installing of new machinery had been completed and that the plant would be running full blast early Saturday morning.

Brownsville merchants take a very optimistic view of the reopening of an industry, whose weekly payroll will average at least $5,000. From 525 to 550 glass workers will commence work Saturday. They will live in Brownsville.

Orders have been received by the company that will run their plant at full capacity for an indefinite period. The daily output is placed at two carloads of finished window glass, or 12 carloads a week.

Considerable funds were expended in repairing the plant and getting it ready for a season's run. The plant had been idle for several years. Workmen have been occupied for the last six weeks in repairing the plant under the direction of Manager Phillips, who was retained by the three banks of Brownsville, who jointly own the plant.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Men who sit still in street cars while women stand and give as their excuse the assertion that women do not thank them when they do offer their seats will like this story:
The man arose and gave his seat to a girl.
"Oh, thank you most kindly, sir," she replied.
"Don't mind her being polite," explained a sad-faced woman, "I'm taking her to a sanitarium."

How easy it is to mix up the average business man was demonstrated the other day when the son of a merchant leaned against his father's knee says an exchange and innocently asked:

"Daddy, is today tomorrow?"

"No, my son, of course today isn't tomorrow," answered the father.

"But you said it was," continued the son.

"When did I ever say today was tomorrow?"

"Yesterday," answered the son.

"Well, it was; today was tomorrow yesterday, but today is today, just as yesterday was today yesterday but is yesterday today and tomorrow will be today tomorrow, which makes today yesterday and tomorrow all at once. Now run along and play," and the father collapsed into his chair with a sigh of relief.

RAILROAD FIGURES TELL WAY IN WHICH PEOPLE LOST LIVES

If every one of the million trains operated on the Pennsylvania Railroad System in 1914 had arrived and departed on time, each one moving over its own particular route without a semblance of a train accident, 19 people, classed in the Interstate Commerce Commission's accident reports as passengers, would have been killed.

As it was, not a single passenger was killed in a train accident on the entire Pennsylvania System of 26,198 miles of track. Yet nineteen so-called passengers were killed.

This is the way they lost their lives on the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1914.

Six people in falling, jumping or slipping from moving cars or trains; two in attempting to get on moving trains; two slipping off station platform in front of trains; two standing too close to edge of station platform and being struck by trains; one jumping off ferry boat; one throwing himself between cars of moving train; three, crossing tracks at stations in front of trains; one struck by coach and thrown under train; one assaulted by another passenger and thrown from train.

The railroad was powerless to prevent these fatalities. It is railroad accidents of this kind that help to swell the accident statistics of the carriers of the country.

A DUKE'S REVENGE

It Gave to Germany Her Most Distinguished Regiment.

THE DEATH'S HEAD HUSSARS.

Organized Originally by Frederick William of Brunswick, Napoleon's Deadly Foe, the Famous Body of Cavalry Fought Its Way to Renown.

The curt refusal of Napoleon I. to allow Frederick William, duke of Brunswick, to bury the body of his exiled father in his native land inspired the organization of the Death's Head Hussars, the most famous regiment in the present German army.

Deeply moved by the ungracious act of the despotic Napoleon, Frederick William, after his first paroxysm of indignation and rage had subsided, vowed eternal vengeance against the French conqueror, and until the day of his death, which was June 16, 1815, on the field of Quatre Bras, he was Napoleon's most implacable foe in all the German states.

Brunswick being barred to him by the victories of the relentless French invader, Duke Frederick William repaired to Bohemia after his father's death. He was without funds, but through the efforts of his sister, then princess of Wales, English funds found their way to him, and he was enabled to set on foot the plans he had formed to revenge himself upon his enemy.

All Germany was then under Napoleon's foot. His armies had swept away all opposition. Prussia, Brunswick, Bavaria, Saxony, all the states were vassals of France. But though conquered or subjugated their hatred of the oppressor was intense, and underneath the surface a fire of hatred smoldered, which the duke helped to fan into the blaze that eventually sent Bonaparte to St. Helena.

The duke announced himself as Napoleon's foe. Men flocked to his standard. He organized and equipped 2,000 cavalrymen and, in memory of his father, clothed them in black. A silver skull and crossbones adorned their hussar's headgear, and the silver-lace slashings of the jackets were placed to resemble the ribs of a skeleton.

The "Black Brunswickers" they were called. With the gallant duke at their head they began a guerrilla warfare that was a continual worry to the French armies. Von Stein, Scharnhorst and others gave them secret encouragement.

Through Saxony, Hesse and Hanover the troops gobbled up and put to the sword French detachments. Iterants flocked to them. At Berneck the duke gave battle to the French General Jutot and whipped him. All Germany thrilled at the romantic accounts of the daring of the terrible "Black Hussars."

A Saxon army was whipped at Zittau, and another force at Halberstadt. A regiment had grown into an army, the only one Napoleon's troops could not corner and whip. The duchy of Brunswick was invaded and the French garrison alarmed. Leipzig was surprised and captured.

Until the battle of Wagram the duke and his hussars rode over Germany at will. That victory gave Napoleon more time to devote to them, and the duke was forced to flee to England. But the "Black Hussars" with the death's head on their caps, continued the warfare in scattered bands. They were welded into a brigade in 1814 and as a part of a division in the allied army commanded by the Duke of Brunswick, rode into Paris after Napoleon's downfall.

They fought again during the hundred days. The Duke of Brunswick did not live to see Napoleon's complete humiliation. He died on the field of battle while trying to rally some recruits who started a stampede at the first French fire.

The fame of the hussars had reached such a point that the organization was continued in the Prussian army. Today its colonel is the crown prince of Germany, and among its officers are princes of a dozen reigning German families.

The regiment presents a splendid appearance on parade, its picturesque uniform of which the skull and crossbones on the headgear are the most striking attractions, imparting to the dashing cavalrymen a sinister and startling effect.—Kansas City Times.

The Walrus' Defenses.
A full grown walrus will weigh as much as 2,000 pounds, a mountainous mass of muscle and blubber. He is armed with tusks of ivory sometimes two feet in length, and when from his upreared bulk these formidable weapons are plunged downward upon an enemy they are as resistless as the drop of a guillotine. Such a thick layer of blubber lies under the skin that he is practically clad in an armor impervious to teeth and claws alike.—St. Nicholas.

Flight of a Bullet.
The same projectile propelled by the same power will travel farther if projected vertically than if projected on a horizontal line four feet from the ground. Thus a bullet fired vertically with a velocity of, say, 100 feet per second, will ascend to a height of 155.3 feet, while if fired with same speed horizontally four feet from the ground will strike the earth at a distance of fifty feet.—New York American.

Knowest thou the meaning of this day? What thou eatest today wisely attempt to do.—Carlyle.

Strength of Insects.
The insects are provided with muscles of enormous power as compared with men. If a fly be held by the wings it can pick up and carry a match, and this is as if a man were able to pick up a beam twenty-eight feet long and fifteen and one-half inches square.

An ordinary little ant can pull eight matches on rollers, which would equal a load of 220 beams the size of a man when its weight is compared with that of a horse.

The flea jumps 200 times its own height, which is about the same as if a man were to jump over the nearly thousand-foot high Eiffel tower.

An oyster operates being opened by exerting a force of over thirty pounds, and for a man to show the same power he would have to take up eighty large locomotives and bear them Atlas-like upon his shoulders.

From a purely physical point of view man is the weakest of animals. It is only by the use of his mind and the application of the laws of mechanics in the machinery he has invented that he has been able to dominate the world.—Boston Herald.

The Yosemite.

The best authorities have now agreed upon the spelling of Yosemite as recorded in Hodge's "Handbook of the American Indians." The following forms have been employed in various publications: Oosemite, Oosomite, Sosemitz, Sosemitz, Yaseemne, Yeamity, Yohamite, Yohamitits, Yosemite, Yosemite, Yosemite, Yosemite and Yoseomite. It never was used by the Indians as the name of the valley, for the Awan division of the Miwok tribe, who made their home in the valley, called their principal village and the whole valley by their name, Awan. The name Yosemite may have derived from the Awan village of Lesanait, but Powers regards it as a distortion of the Miwok word yamait, meaning grizzly bear.—New York Sun.

The Squirrel.

Innocent in all his ways, harmless in his food, playful as a kitten, but without cruelty, and surpassing the fantastic dexterity of the monkey, with the grace and brightness of a bird, the little dark-eyed miracle of the forest glances from branch to branch more like a sunbeam than a living creature. It leaps and dashes and twines where it will. A chamois is slow to it and a panther clumsy. Grotesque as a gnome, gentle as a fairy, delicate as the silken plumes of the rush, beautiful and strong like the spiral of a fern, it haunts you, listens for you, hides from you, looks for you, loves you, as if the angel that walks with your children had made it himself for a heavenly plaything.—John Ruskin.

Palace of the Popes.

The Vatican is the papal palace and derives its name from the hill on which it stands, the Mons Vaticanus, one of the seven hills of Rome. It is a collection of magnificent buildings, which occupy a space of 1,151 by 767 feet. The most ancient of the present structures dates from the time of Nicholas V., about 1447. The various popes from time to time added new buildings, in which are many works of art of a historical character. The Sistine chapel, one of the Vatican edifices, contains Michelangelo's first masterpiece in painting, "The Last Judgment." The Pauline chapel possesses Michelangelo's frescoes of "The Conversion of St. Paul" and "The Crucifixion of St. Peter."

Troops and Winter.

When Napoleon went to Moscow and back it was found that the French soldiers stood the intense cold better than the Poles and north Germans. It is quite wrong, by the way, to suppose, as is often done, that that fatal winter set in early with exceptional severity. Napoleon invented that explanation to palliate the disaster into which he plunged his army. But the autumn was so exceptionally mild that the peasants believed that God was favoring Napoleon, and the first snowstorm did not come until Nov. 6, an unusually late arrival.

Decorations For Women.

There are few decorations for women in Europe, the most ancient order coming from the Austrian throne. It is the decoration of the Star and Cross, and is given to women of high rank. Another is the Luken, founded in memory of the beautiful queen of Prussia whom Napoleon insulted. This order is given to all classes of women who subject themselves to any great self-sacrifice.

To Clean Watch Chains.

Gold or silver watch chains can be cleaned with a very excellent result, no matter whether they be matt or polished, by laying them for a few seconds in pure aqua ammonia. They are then rinsed in alcohol and finally shaken in clean sawdust free from sand.—Medical Herald.

Naval Mines.

The first recorded appearance of mines as instruments of naval warfare was at the siege of Antwerp in 1855, when they were employed by the Dutch against the Spaniards.

Took the Hint.

A wearied young lady hastened the departure of a tedious caller by remarking as she looked out of the window, "I think we are going to have a beautiful sunrise."

Why grin and bear all these ills when Sloan's Liniment kills pain?

"I have used your Liniment and can say it is fine. I have used it for sore throat, strained shoulder, and it acted like a charm."—Allen Dunn, Route 1, Box 88, Pine Valley, Miss.

"I am a painter and paperhanger by trade, consequently up and down ladders. About two years ago my left knee became lame and sore. It pained me at nights at times till I could not rest, and I was contemplating giving up my trade on account of it when I chanced to think of Sloan's Liniment. I had never tried it before, and I am glad to state that less than one 25c. bottle fixed me up apparently as good as ever."—Charles C. Campbell, Florence, Texas.

BRAWNY NORWEGIANS.

They Are the Longest Lived People in the World Today.

The fine stature and unique physical qualities of the athletic Norwegians are thus described by Price Collier in an article on "Norway and the Norwegians," from an American Point of View, in Scribner's Magazine:

"The so called lumber, or agricultural peasantry, form the very backbone of the nation in Norway. Each is proprietor of his own farm, and they occupy the country from the shore of the sea to the foot of the hills and up every glebe or valley as far as corn will grow. They are, as a rule, fine looking, athletic men, as their properties are not so large as to exempt them from work, but large enough to supply them and their families with wholesome food. In the old days they built their own houses, made their own furniture, plows, carts, harness, ironwork, woodwork and basketwork. Probably there are no communities anywhere else in the world so self efficient, so independent and so comfortable.

"Indeed, their size and wholesome aspect prove this, for they are the fairest, tallest, broadest chested and longest lived people in the world today.

"In the streets of the towns, at the farms, on the roads, one seldom sees a fat man or one who looks unwieldy. They are sturdy, sometimes heavily built, but they are lean in the back, broad of shoulder and thick through, and, though they do not always carry themselves lightly or gracefully, they look to have plenty of room for the working machinery of living, for heart and lungs and digestive apparatus. Wherever you go in Norway, from Christiania and to the North Cape, you cannot go far without going up and down hill, nor can you go far without inhaling the champagne-like mountain air. It is not impossible that the plain food—of necessity in a poor country—the physical training in the schools, the obligatory military training, the sensible temperance legislation, the up and down hill exercise, the almost entire lack of luxury and the fact that they are not hard workers—not lazy, perhaps, but certainly leisurely in their toil, seldom making any undue demand upon their nervous energy—have produced what no artificial legislation can copy.

Napoleon and Rousseau.

Napoleon on visiting the tomb of Rousseau said:

"It would have been better for the repose of France that this man had never been born."

"Why so, Citizen Consul?"

"It is he who prepared the French revolution."

"I should have thought, Citizen Consul, that it was not for you to complain of the revolution."

"Well," replied Napoleon, "the future will discover whether it was not better for the repose of the world that neither Rousseau nor I had ever been born."

In these words we hear the first clarion of advancing idealism—"The Personality of Napoleon," J. Holland Rose.

The Origin of "Hurrah."

The word "hurrah" is pure Slavonian and is commonly heard from the coast of Dalmatia to Bering Strait when any of the population living within these limits is called on to give proof of courage and valor. The origin of the word belongs to the primitive idea that every man that dies heroically for his country goes straight to heaven—Hurrah, to paradise—and in the shock and ardor of battle the combatants utter that cry, as the Turks do that of "Allah!" each animating himself by the certitude of immediate recompense to forget earth and to contain death.

How Indians Purified Water.

The Indians had a way of purifying water from a pond or swamp by digging a hole about a foot across and down about six inches below the water level a few feet from the pond. After it was filled with water they boiled it out quickly, repeating the boiling process about three times. After the third boiling the hole would be filled with filtered water. Try it—For Great Handbook.

Why Corn Has Silk.

A Potato Hill man who is sixty-one years old never knew until recently that for every grain of an ear of corn there is a silk running out to the cob to light and moisture. These silks run back under the husk. One is attached to each grain on the cob and nourishes it. Everything in nature is more wonderful than any invention stored. Potato Hill Cor. in Atchison Globe.

Culture's Progress.

"Our daughter is studying French. German, music, dancing and painting," said the food mother complacently.

"Well," replied Mr. Comrox, "that's a good start. But has she yet learned not to use back number slang and chew gum?"—Washington Star.

No Longer Company.

"Familiarity breeds contempt." "True," When I was first invited over to their home to dinner they used to let the dishes go until morning; now they do them right after dinner and call me into the kitchen to help."—Detroit Free Press.

His Definition.

"Pa, what is a demagogue?" "A demagogue, my son, is a person who gives voice to opinions that conflict with your own."—New York Herald.

Peace hath higher tests of manhood than battle ever knew."—Whittier.

GERMAN CIVIL COURTS.

Mode of Procedure Where Commercial Cases Are Tried.

The "handelsgericht," or commercial court, is presided over by one judge and two assessors known as "handelsrichter"—commercial judges nominated by commercial bodies and appointed by the government. Any German is eligible who is registered as a merchant, thirty years old, and otherwise qualified as specially provided by law. Only commercial cases are sent to this department upon motion of either party. I witnessed a trial between merchants and was much pleased with the speedy method of determining the case.

Instead of submitting technical business questions to a jury, who in all probability never heard of the facts before, and then offering the testimony of experts on each side of the case, which often has a tendency to confuse the jury rather than to enlighten them, the German commercial judges possess personal experience in business and skill in affairs of commerce of the greatest value in arriving at correct conclusions. Besides, the procedure, as a rule, is brief and to the point and causes little delay to the litigants. So far as I could observe, this system worked very satisfactorily.—Fred H. Peterson in Case and Comment.

THE MAN WHO LAUGHS.

The Reason He Does So From a Physical Point of View.

Laughter is an involuntary response of certain muscles to a communication from nerves controlling their action. We laugh because we receive an impression through our sensory nerves that causes a demonstration from the muscles which express mirth. The vigor or heartiness of laughter depends upon the susceptibility of the brain to what is received through the sensory nerves.

They get the impression in three ways—from something we see, feel or hear—and send it along to the nerve center. From there it is sent along other nerves connected with certain muscles or glands and excites them to activity.

The nerves are like so many electric wires, and the sensory nerves act as a battery, by means of which the electric currents of life are transmitted. The muscles have the power to express the state of gladness, indicated by laughter, according to the positive nature of the impressions passed along the nerves, which operate them. You laugh less heartily the second time you hear a funny story because the impression is less positive.—Rocky Mountain News.

A Book That Wasn't Published.

A singular plan for honoring heroes was proposed in 1822. If we may credit the following footnote to "La Typographie," a poem by Le Pelletier, published in that year at Geneva: "In February, just several newspapers announced that the largest book ever printed will shortly appear in London under the title 'The Pantheon of English Heroes.' The pages of this book will be twelve feet long and two feet wide and the letters six inches high. It has been found necessary to erect special machinery for the manufacture of the paper required. This gigantic work will be printed by steam in characters of gold, no ordinary printing ink being used in the process. Only a hundred copies will be issued, and these will serve to adorn the principal libraries in England." You will not find that book in any public or private library.

Pearls.

The use and popularity of pearls date back to about 300 B. C., but they were known to yet older peoples; and especially to those of the east. The Chinese records go still farther back and state pearls were received as tribute in the twenty-third century B. C. It is probable that they were found in the waters of Persia and India 2,000 years ago, and the Greeks of course both knew and recognized the value of the pearl. But it was not until the Roman empire was beginning to rise that the knowledge of the value of the pearl became general.

Unfortunate Namur.

From the tenth century to 1421 Namur was the capital of a dukedom, but was merged in the Netherlands in 1421. It was captured in 1692 by Marshal Vauban in the Netherlands war and three years later by William of Orange. Again in 1746 the French General Clermont took it, and it was taken from the French by Joseph II. in 1794, but restored again later. In 1915 it was defended with great bravery in the Waterloo campaign.—London Answers.

Interrogating a Reformer.

"I shall leave politics a poorer man than when I first accepted office," said the patriot.

"Excuse me," responded the friend, who is a little hard of hearing, "did you say poorer or purer?"—Washington Star.

Easy.

"I wish I knew how to get rid of trouble." "I'll help you out. I know a fellow who's always looking for it."—Judge.

FOOD, FINGERS AND FLIES.

Three of the Factors Most Active in Spreading Disease.

There are three principal ways in which disease germs are carried from person to person, and these ways may be easily remembered by three catch words—food, fingers and flies.

The most important foods which carry disease are those which are eaten raw, since thorough cooking destroys disease germs and most cooked foods are only dangerous when they have been infected in the kitchen after cooking. Among raw foods, too, many like oranges, are safe because they are peeled before eating.

Of all foods the most dangerous are water and milk, because they are often polluted by sewage in the case of water, by human contact in the case of milk, because they are drunk promptly without time for the disease germs to die out and because, usually in the case of water and often in the case of milk, they are not cooked.

The second way in which disease germs are commonly spread is by means of contact between people themselves. Fingers, in the catch phrase, which all who value their health should try to bear in mind, stands not only for the fingers themselves, but for all sorts of ways in which disease germs may be exchanged.

In measles and whooping cough and scarlet fever and diphtheria and rubella and many other diseases the germs are present in the nose and throat and are spread from person to person by the fingers, which go too often to the mouth and nose, by drinking cups and spoons and other things which too often are used in common and by the fine spray thrown out from the mouth in coughing and sneezing. In typhoid fever and diarrhea and similar diseases the germs are found in the intestinal discharges, and here, too, soiled fingers play an important part in the transmission of the disease.

The third common way in which disease germs are spread is by means of insects. Flies are perhaps the most important insect germ carriers in most states. They often pick up infected material on their legs and bodies and carry it to food, and where there is no good system of sewage disposal they may play a part in the spread of such diseases as typhoid fever. A certain kind of mosquito carries malaria, and this, too, is important in certain districts. In tropical countries a whole host of diseases is carried by insects.—New York American.

COWBOYS OF SPAIN.

Splendid Horsemen, but They Use Spurs Without Mercy.

The perfection of Spanish horsemanship is to be seen among the vaqueros, gauchos and gaitchists, by which various names the mounted herdsmen of the Andalusian plains are known. In brief, what we should call a cowboy. Every farm seems to maintain a large number of these, for each herd of stock or drove has its own herdman, goatherd or sniueherd, as the case may be. The vaqueros are a one looking lot of men. Tall, thin, light and loosely made, they look ideal horsemen, as, in point of fact, they are, though their mounts are poor.

The vaquero rides very high on a huge saddle, with a long stirrup and straight leg, using a single rein and a very heavy curb, but he has such beautiful hands that, although using this barbarous bit, he never cuts his horse's mouth about. It is different with the animals' sides, however, for he uses his spurs without mercy, and the white horses of which there are a large number—all have ominous red stains behind the ribs.

All the herdsmen who look after cattle carry a long lance, called a garrocha, of thick and heavy wood, which, except when standing still, they always carry in rest, and not at the carry, presumably on account of its great length and possibly its weight. With this weapon, in the use of which he acquires amazing dexterity, the garrochista is able to control the most unruly brutes in the herd, not excepting the savage fighting bull.—Wide World Magazine.

Making a Record.

Sir George Trevelyan told a curious little anecdote regarding an interview he had once had with Thackeray. The novelist was engaged at the time in writing "The Virginians," and in the middle of the conversation he commenced to ask each of the young men in the company what was the greatest length they had ever jumped. The greatest jump claimed was twenty-two feet.

"Well," said Thackeray, "then I will make Washington jump twenty-four." So reputations are made.—London Standard.

Offensively Official.

"You always go home exceedingly early, old man." "Yes. Our neighbors are the cause of that."

"How so?" "If I stay downtown a minute late they come right over and condone with my wife."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Caviar.

Caviar is the roe of the sturgeon prepared as a table delicacy. As a dish too rare to be known by the generality of people and the flavor of which would not be ruined by an uneducated palate, Shakespeare makes Hamlet speak of it.

Physically and Mentally Worn Out—Tells How Nervous and Crying Spells Were Ended by Vinol.

Monmouth, Ill.—"I was weak, worn-out and nervous. I had no appetite and was getting so thin and discouraged, one day I just broke down and cried when a friend came in and asked me what was the matter. I told of my condition and how nothing I took seemed to do me any good. Vinol was suggested. I got a bottle and before it was half gone I could eat and sleep well. I continued its use and now my friends say I look ten years younger, and I am well, healthy and strong. I wish I could induce every tired-out, worn-out, nervous woman to take Vinol."—Mrs. HARRIET GALE, Monmouth, Ill.

PROSPEROUS YEAR IN 1914, REPORTS PLATE GLASS MANUFACTURE

Europe's war practically removed European competition from the world's glass markets and the year 1914 was one of the most prosperous ever experienced by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company. For the first time in its history there is a substantial foreign demand for the company's products.

For the year 1914 the company's gross business was $22,128,254 against $22,770,593 in 1913 and net earnings were $2,404,019 against $2,455,297. The company earned over 10 1-2 per cent on its $22,750,000 capital stock in 1914 or practically the same result as 1913.

In commenting on the company's annual report, Chairman John P. Cairn says: "This result of the year's business is satisfactory, considering the unsettled conditions and the fact that there is still a large overproduction of plate glass in this country. Notwithstanding a great curtailment in our production, we have on hand a larger stock of plate glass than ever before. Prices have been as low as at any time in the history of the business. When the war began imported glass was coming into this country in increasing quantities and reduced figures were being quoted by the foreign manufacturers. Since then owing to the decrease in production in England, the complete shut down of all the Belgian factories, and the reported shut down of all but one of the French factories imports have practically ceased prices have steadied and for the first time in our experience there has been a substantial foreign demand for our products. Orders for domestic consumption have been received, to replace those given to foreign manufacturers, which they were unable to fill. While the large decrease in building permits in this country is an unfavorable factor, there is much to be said for the outlook for business. We confidently expect that the foreign demand during the war will more than compensate for the falling off in domestic consumption, and it is not improbable that the domestic requirements will increase with the expected improvement in general business."

The company has added a mirror plant at Salamanca, N.Y., to its properties. By granting the use of some of its patents to other companies the company has increased its income.

Plate Glass Prices Reduced. Plate glass manufacturers have lowered prices on stock sheets about 20 per cent, the new discounts going into effect recently. Whether plate glass generally will suffer in sympathy with this cut remains to be seen.

Two German scientists have developed a process for forcing lead, tin, copper, iron, cobalt or silver into glass by electricity to color it.
